Inhaltsangabe	This B2+ course builds advanced English skills for academic and professional success in tourism, sport, and event management. Students improve fluency across all four skills, mastering field-specific vocabulary and intercultural communication. The course focuses on reading academic texts, writing formal reports and CVs, and delivering effective presentations.

	Students will practice real-world tasks like job interviews, public speaking, and interpreting complex content, ideal for aiming to study, work, and thrive in international, English-speaking environments.
Themen der Lehrveranstaltung	The course draws on themes of professional and academic relevance to students so as provide a range of meaningful contexts for the development of students' receptive (listening/reading) and productive (speaking/writing) English competences. The course thus entails supporting students as they develop their communicative expertise across a range of academic, professional and cultural contexts. Course topics include: - specialised terminology in tourism, sport and event management domains; - common lexical/grammatical and syntactical features in formal (academic / professional) and informal contexts; - coherence cohesion devices in texts and oral communication; - researching, drafting and finalising career-furthering texts (CVs, letters and personal statements); - intercultural communication and implications for verbal and paraverbal aspects of communication across cultures; - collaborative optimising of oral interview and presentation skills through appropriately aligning linguistic aspects of communication with paraverbal / embodied aspects for effective storytelling.
Stichwörter	Professional and academic discourses - specialised terminology – alignment of verbal and paraverbal competences for optimising professional and academic communication
Empfohlene Voraussetzungen	English language knowledge at level B1 (Common European Framework of Reference for Languages – CEFR).
