| Assessment | Attending Students: Assessment is based on a 90-minute written exam, group project work, and active participation in the lecture and group project for attending students. The grading for "students present" is based on the following weighting: written exam 60%, group project report, presentation and discussion 40%. Non-attending Students: Assessment is based on a 90-minute written exam which is identical to the exam for attending students. In addition, a 10-page seminar paper is required, evaluating a local wine or food experience and/or event. The grading of coursework for "non-attending students" is as follows: written exam (60%) and seminar paper (40%). At least 50% of the total possible points are required to pass the course. ILOs 1-2 are assessed with the written exam. ILOs 3-5 are assessed through the group project for attending students and through the seminar paper for non-attending students. |
| Evaluation Criteria | The written exam assesses the quality and clarity of answers, language skills, and ability to accurately relate to the topics covered. The group project assesses collaboration skills, creativity, critical thinking, synthesis skills, and judgment. Participation and discussion participation are assessed based on interactive participation in the group project and active contributions to discussions during lectures. |
| Required Readings | Unfortunately, there is no relevant textbook in German for this course. However, students may refer to additional readings in English as background material for the lectures. |
