Ressum� di contegnus	The course offers a general overview of media studies, focusing on the evolving role of media at the intersection of nature, culture, and technology. It introduces key patterns in media and communication, tracing the historical development of media types and their societal impacts. Students explore essential theories and communication models, analyze the transition from orality to literacy, and critically evaluate the evolution of mass media and its effects on society. Further emphasis is placed on the societal dimensions of the complex of information and communication technologies, computer-mediated communication and social networks, including their roles in modernization and post-industrial change. The course combines theoretical, empirical, and practice-oriented approaches to foster critical thinking and media competence. Special attention is given to sustainability and the transformative potential of media for eco-social change.

Sort de ejam	The course evaluation is based on a balanced combination of continuous coursework and a final examination. Students are required to read selected academic texts and prepare introductory presentations on key approaches, models, and findings, which contribute 50% to the final grade. In parallel, each student must complete a major assignment analyzing the media coverage of specific cases related to a shared thematic focus, also weighted at 50%. The findings of the media coverage analysis are presented in class to allow for peer and instructor feedback. Finally, they need to be submitted as a written report a week before the final examination. The final examination is a brief oral examination based on the student's achievements. For not attending students: Not attending students are those not regularly present in class and not delivering all required assignments during the time span of the course. They have to study completely on their own on the basis of a list of essential literature (that will be published in the MS TEAMS domain of the course as well) in order to prepare themselves to an extensive written final examination that will provide the final mark.

Criters de valutazion	For this course the appraisal of the students' performance will be carried out under careful application of the following criteria: - mastery of language for expressing course related contents (also under consideration of the fact that the teaching language might not be the students mother tongue) - ability to work in a team and use individual faculties successfully in interactive processes - consistency in the elaboration of written reports - clarity in the preparation of oral presentations - capability to summarize, evaluate, and establish relationships between topics - ability to reflect about different standpoints, perspectives and preferences and discuss these issues critically, appropriate and mindful - distinctness in answering questions about the results of the assignments, especially the final one, and explicitness in displaying the outcome of the students work. Criteria relevant for the assessment of not-attending students are: - distinctness in answering the questions of the extensive written examination correct and complete - ability to summarize, evaluate, and establish relationships between topics - ability to reflect about different standpoints, perspectives and preferences and discuss these issues critically, appropriate and mindful.
