Inhaltsangabe	This course explores the principles and practices of sustainability reporting in response to growing ESG demands. Students learn how firms disclose ESG information, its impact on stakeholders, and the challenges of ensuring credibility, including greenwashing.
Themen der Lehrveranstaltung	In the past decade, there has been a significant increase in attention towards environmental, social, and governance (ESG) issues among managers, investors, regulators, and various stakeholders. This heightened interest is evident in the adoption of ESG-related disclosure mandates worldwide and the expansion of sustainable investing within global capital markets. This course aims to provide students with an in-depth exploration of sustainability reporting considering this growing emphasis on ESG dimensions.

Through this course, students will delve into the fundamental concepts and tools of sustainability accounting and reporting. They will examine the potential advantages for firms that disclose ESG information while also grappling with significant challenges, including the risk of greenwashing.

Furthermore, students will gain insight into the existing and emerging ESG regulations and frameworks governing ESG performance metrics. The focus will be on the EU Corporate Sustainability Reporting Directive (CSRD), as well as concurrent ESG standard-setting initiatives worldwide (e.g. Global Reporting Initiative, IFRS International Sustainability Standard Board and Task-related Task Force on Climate-Related Financial Disclosures). Through case studies and practical examples, students will learn how ESG factors are incorporated into financial statements and how these disclosures influence investment outcomes. Engaging with these topics will enable students to develop a hands-on understanding of the complexities surrounding ESG reporting and its implications for corporate behavior and different market participants.

Here a detailed list of topics:

- Evolution and current landscape of sustainability/ESG accounting and reporting:
 - The role of sustainability/ESG accounting and reporting in sustainable finance: regulatory and market-based drivers
 - ESG reporting standards: latest developments in EU (CSRD/ESRS) and main international frameworks (GRI, IFRS, TCFD, TNFD, Integrated Reporting)
 - Double Materiality assessment and interoperability across ESG reporting standards: theory and practice
- Carbon management and carbon reporting:
 - international greenhouse gas (GHG) measurement protocols
